

I love Sausalito. I love the people, the waterfront, the town's character – and its characters. Who doesn't love the Halloween parade, Schoonmaker Beach, and Galilee Harbor? Prior to the pandemic we had challenges, places we knew we could do better. Now we have a budget crunch to survive too.

I built my own small business, endured two recessions, and have spent a career helping more than a hundred small businesses grow, from neighborhood restaurants to high-tech startups. I've learned to be thrifty, to get maximum value from every budget dollar.

For six years, I served on the board of Meals on Wheels, which delivers three million meals a year to homebound older adults. I'm a lifetime member of the Sausalito Cruising Club, Vice Chair of Sausalito's Economic Development Advisory Committee, an Eagle Scout, avid sailor, and graduated from Stanford with a Ph.D. in Aerospace Engineering.

On City Council, I'll be a pragmatic force making things better. We can manage our deficit and have better services, more imagination, and more beauty. We can have a visionary master plan for Sausalito that excites us, serves the diverse values of our community, and brings us all together.

With your vote, together we can, move Sausalito forward.
