Providing public land for housing is wrong and counterproductive. There will always be demand for cheap affordable housing. You could build a million units and they would want more. Do the absolute minimum as far as law demands. Putting 200 units in this land deprives future citizens the use of that space. The rhna is complete bullshit and can't be realized in reality. Sausalito should do nothing to promote this ridiculous demand. Also the fruit company project needs to be cancelled or drastically reduced. It's a historic area and has endangered species behind bridgeway. Use these protections to stop or reduce drastically the number of units. This project is completely out of character with Sausalito small town image.
